About The Cupola

The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College is a collection of scholarly and creative works produced by faculty, students, and other members of the Gettysburg College community. It contains articles, working papers, conference presentations, book chapters, and other professional contributions authored by faculty.

The Cupola also highlights the best in student work, including select capstone projects, papers and projects honored during Celebration, journals published by Gettysburg College departments, as well as grant-funded student-faculty research.

More about Journal Articles...

Past Publications

- Many journal publishers (65%) allow authors to self-publish in institutional repositories.
- Publishers may allow authors to post the publisher's pdf, the post-print (post-refereeing), and/or the pre-print (pre-refereed manuscript).
- Ask a librarian (cupola@gettysburg.edu) or check SHERPA/RoMEO (www.sherpa.ac.uk/romeo) for more detail on a specific journal's policy.

Future Publications

- BEFORE you sign a contract with a publisher, read it carefully. Don't sign away your copyright without fully understanding the implications.
- Consider using the SPARC Author Addendum to legally modify the publisher's agreement and retain key rights to your work, so that you may deposit it in The Cupola.
- Ask a librarian (cupola@gettysburg.edu) or check SHERPA/RoMEO (www.sherpa.ac.uk/romeo) for more detail.
