

5-3-2012

Is It Already May?

Molly Troy
Gettysburg College

Follow this and additional works at: <https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/libinternblog>

Part of the Library and Information Science Commons

Share feedback about the accessibility of this item.

Troy, Molly, "Is It Already May?" (2012). Blogging the Library. 98.
<https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/libinternblog/98>

This open access blog post is brought to you by The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College. It has been accepted for inclusion by an authorized administrator of The Cupola. For more information, please contact cupola@gettysburg.edu.

Is It Already May?

Abstract

Last week of classes and one week of exams—the semester is slowly winding down, and soon, if the weather cooperates, summer will be here. In the meantime, for most of us on campus it's time to buckle down and do the work we've all been procrastinating on. That said, I imagine the library is excited for the semi-annual craziness that is exam week. Thankfully, as in past semesters, the library will be offering students a chance to chill out with the library. This “chill” study break will include “chilly” ice cream, snacks, board games, and possibly even Christmas lights! [excerpt]

Keywords

Musselman Library, Gettysburg College, Fortenbaugh Internship

Disciplines

Library and Information Science

Comments

The Interns at Gettysburg College's Musselman Library captured their internship experiences since the spring of 2011. Over time the blog has featured Fortenbaugh, Smith, and Holley interns. They shared updates on semester long projects, responded to blogging prompts, and documented their individual intern experience.

Creative Commons License

Creative

Commons

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 License

License

Blogging the Library

The Interns @ Gettysburg College's Musselman Library

Is it already May?

Thursday, May 3, 2012

By: Molly Troy '12

Last week of classes and one week of exams—the semester is slowly winding down, and soon, if the weather cooperates, summer will be here. In the meantime, for most of us on campus it's time to buckle down and do the work we've all been procrastinating on. That said, I imagine the library is excited for the semi-annual craziness that is exam week. Thankfully, as in past semesters, the library will be offering students a chance to chill out with the library. This "chill" study break will include "chilly" ice cream, snacks, board games, and possibly even Christmas lights! Personally, considering what assignments I have due before Monday, I will certainly be enjoying that down-time!!

Today is my last reference shift. This semester and this internship flew by. I am really happy that I had the opportunity to work in the reference department. It allowed me to begin to learn the best ways of retrieving information and helping patrons. It was wonderful whenever I could concretely help a patron. That is what I look forward to most in the future: working with library patrons. I developed many useful skills in this internship, including the ability to use imovie! I am also really glad I had the opportunity to work with the children's collection. I am excited to be able to dive into resources for children and young adults even more while I am in grad school!

I am really going to miss Musselman Library when I graduate. I started working with Jim in tech services as a lowly first-year and ever since the library has been an integral and special place for me. Thank you to all the people who make Musselman Library what it is—it truly is a wonderful place!

<http://bloggingthelibrary2012.blogspot.com/>