BIOGRAPHIES

SKYE MONTGOMERY is a sophomore History major and a double minor in Civil War Era Studies and theatre arts. Although a native of Utah, she found her true home at Gettysburg and has taken full advantage of the area's rich history. Following graduation, she hopes to pursue graduate work in museum studies so that she may touch the "mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone" and rally others to the cause of historic preservation.

BRETT JACKSON is a History and Political Science double-major and a member of the class of 2008. She is from Annapolis, Maryland and a member of the Gettysburg College cross-country and track-and-field teams. She is either running or in the library at any given time of day. After Gettysburg she hopes to go to law school or become a professor.

BRIAN MATTHEW JORDAN is a sophomore History major and Civil War Era Studies minor at Gettysburg College. Following graduation, he plans on pursuing a Ph.D. in American History and hopes to teach Civil War history at the undergraduate level. He is currently finishing a monograph on the Civil War Battle of South Mountain.

JOSEPH D. GASPARRO is a senior at Gettysburg College who is majoring in both History and Education. Joseph serves as Vice President of the Inter-Fraternal Council, is a member of Student Senate, the college's Hiring & Promotion Board, the I.D.S. Committee, and the Judicial Board. He is also a member of the Dean's List, the Order of Omega Honor Society, and recipient of the Alpha Tau Omega Highest GPA Award. After Gettysburg, Joseph plans to attend law school or pursue a Ph.D. in history.

DANIEL SCOTTO is a student at Gettysburg College and member of the Class of 2008. He hopes to complete a major in History and a minor in Political Science. Originally from Staten Island, New York, he currently resides in Marlboro, New Jersey.
