

The Mercury
The Student Art & Literary Magazine
of Gettysburg College

Volume 2018

Article 13

April 2018

I Write Instead

Caleigh Flegg
Gettysburg College

Follow this and additional works at: <https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/mercury>

Part of the Art and Design Commons, and the Creative Writing Commons

Share feedback about the accessibility of this item.

Recommended Citation

Flegg, Caleigh (2018) "I Write Instead," The Mercury: Year 2018, Article 13.
Available at: <https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/mercury/vol2018/iss1/13>

This open access poetry is brought to you by The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College. It has been accepted for inclusion by an authorized administrator of The Cupola. For more information, please contact cupola@gettysburg.edu.

I Write Instead

Author Bio

Caleigh Flegg is a sophomore majoring in English and double-minoring in Writing and Business. She has been writing since before she could talk, and has utilized her passion to become the editor in chief of her high school's literary magazine, a general fiction editor of the Mercury, and a contributor to Women In Read. Caleigh fond of any literature, but has a soft spot for E.E Cumming's poetry and Jandy Nelson's prose.

I Write Instead

My Heart

I want to write a poem about me.

About my heart,
the last peach of summer,
bruised but sweet.

How it has not felt
an ocean type of love,
not a nonstop earthquake dreams love,
but something more like a soft drizzle
or a moth
beating at the panes of a window not understanding that the light has gone out.

But there is no poem there.

The poem I write instead is the sound of my mother's wedding ring jumping off the hardwood floors,
burrowing into a crack,
sliding into the dark.

The poem is her not bothering to pick it up.

The poem is my father,
the moth,
and my mother,
the window.

And me,
sixteen,
gripping each half of my heart in both hands,
starting to understand that this might be it.