Scholarly Communications Committee

Overview

In January 2014, our institutional repository working group evolved into the Scholarly Communications Committee. The current committee has a broader scope which includes a focus on education and outreach, in addition to oversight and growth of The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College (our bepress institutional repository).

As of May 31, 2014, we host 1,441 files in The Cupola. They have been downloaded 66,793 times (average number of downloads per item is 46).

Highlights

- We offered three public programs about open access and related topics to our campus community; combined attendance was over 100.
- Professor Chuck Kann (Computer Science) published Gettysburg College’s first OER (Open Educational Resource) in The Cupola. Digital Circuit Projects: An Overview of Digital Circuits Through Implementing Integrated Circuits is a full-length lab manual authored by Professor Kann. It was accessed 112 times during its first month!
- We added many new content types to The Cupola, including audio essays, screencasts with audio, blog posts, and exhibit catalogs.

The Cupola, by the numbers

As of May 31, 2014, we have 1410 records and 1441 files in The Cupola (some works have more than one associated file). 65% of all files were added during the past year.

Total files in The Cupola:

- 935 added June '13-May '14
- 506 added previously

77% of all items in The Cupola contain full, open access content. 23% of records consist only of descriptive metadata, which facilitates discovery of scholarship by Gettysburg authors.

Access to our scholarship is rising much more quickly than the number of items added. Each fulltext item is downloaded an average of 46 times.

Journals

Currently we host three student journals in The Cupola; each is edited and peer-reviewed by students, and each publishes one issue annually.

The Gettysburg College Journal of the Civil War Era. “Ole’ Zip Coon is a Mighty Learned Scholar: Blackface Minstrelsy as Reflection and Foundation of American Popular Culture” by Cory Rosenberg ’12 was the most-accessed student journal article (360 downloads).

The Gettysburg Historical Journal. “Voices of Moderation: Southern Whites Respond to Brown v. Board of Education” by Gareth D. Pahowka ’06 was the most-accessed article (299 downloads).

The Mercury. “The Sketchpad of Carl Smithson,” a fiction piece by Emily A. Francisco ’14 was the most accessed item (42 downloads), after the entire 2014 issue of The Mercury (73 downloads).

Goals for 2014-15

• We plan to celebrate and promote Open Access Week (October 20-26) in a much bigger way. We are coordinating with the library Marketing Committee to plan promotional materials and events.
• We will continue our outreach and educational programming, offering a Lunch & Learn each semester.
• We will work with the Civil War Institute to represent their annual summer conference as an event community in The Cupola.
• We are retrospectively entering student presentations from Celebration 2014 in The Cupola. We will explore getting the Celebration 2015 metadata into the system before the event and hopefully capturing more full content created by students.
