8-10-2013

Fearless: Nadejiah Towns

Nadejiah Z. Towns

Gettysburg College

Follow this and additional works at: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge

Part of the Adult and Continuing Education and Teaching Commons, Civic and Community Engagement Commons, Community-Based Learning Commons, Educational Sociology Commons, Family, Life Course, and Society Commons, Politics and Social Change Commons, and the Social Work Commons

Share feedback about the accessibility of this item.

https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/93

This is the author's version of the work. This publication appears in Gettysburg College's institutional repository by permission of the copyright owner for personal use, not for redistribution. Cupola permanent link: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/93

This open access blog post is brought to you by The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College. It has been accepted for inclusion by an authorized administrator of The Cupola. For more information, please contact cupola@gettysburg.edu.
Fearless: Nadejiah Towns

Abstract
This week we would like to recognize Nadejiah Towns ’15 as a fearless fighter against poverty. This summer she has served as a Heston intern for the South Central Community Action Program (SCCAP) and has spent the majority of her time with the Work Ready program, a “welfare to work” organization that helps low-income community members gain the skills needed to by obtaining a reliable, professional job and become self-sufficient.

Keywords
Surge, Surge Gettysburg, Gettysburg College, Center for Public Service, poverty, SCCAP, South Central Community Action Program, welfare to work, vocational education

Disciplines
Adult and Continuing Education and Teaching | Civic and Community Engagement | Community-Based Learning | Educational Sociology | Family, Life Course, and Society | Politics and Social Change | Social Work

Comments
Surge is a student blog at Gettysburg College where systemic issues of justice matter. Posts are originally published at surgegettysburg.wordpress.com Through stories and reflection, these blog entries relate personal experiences to larger issues of equity, demonstrating that –isms are structural problems, not actions defined by individual prejudice. We intend to popularize justice, helping each other to recognize our biases and unlearn the untruths.

This blog post is available at The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/93
This week we would like to recognize Nadejiah Towns ’15 as a fearless fighter against poverty. This summer she has served as a Heston intern for the South Central Community Action Program (SCCAP) and has spent the majority of her time with the Work Ready program, a “welfare to work” organization that helps low-income community members gain the skills needed to obtain a reliable, professional job and become self-sufficient.

Along with assisting the Work Ready coordinator, Debi Little, on a daily basis, Nadejiah has taken the initiative to devise a new vocational education lesson plan that will not only be useful to the Work Ready clients in Adams County, but also to other clients throughout Pennsylvania and in other parts of the country. Debi Little says that Nadejiah spearheaded this project and went above and beyond her assigned duties. This lesson plan will help to teach Work Ready clients valuable computer skills that will give them an edge in the competitive job hunt.

Nadejiah’s commitment to SCCAP does not end there. She has led various workshops in the Work Ready program, provided regular ESL tutoring to a client, and assisted with SCCAP’s weekly Circles of Support meetings. By tackling the crucial issues of poverty this summer, Nadejiah has demonstrated a strong dedication to the cause and a true passion for social justice.

http://surgegettysburg.wordpress.com/2013/08/10/fearless-nadejiah-towns/