7-26-2013

Fearless: Heather Thomas

Heather L. Thomas
Gettysburg College

Follow this and additional works at: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge

Part of the Civic and Community Engagement Commons, Economic Policy Commons, Food Science Commons, Politics and Social Change Commons, Service Learning Commons, and the Social Welfare Commons

Share feedback about the accessibility of this item.

https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/100

This is the author's version of the work. This publication appears in Gettysburg College's institutional repository by permission of the copyright owner for personal use, not for redistribution. Cupola permanent link: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/100

This open access blog post is brought to you by The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College. It has been accepted for inclusion by an authorized administrator of The Cupola. For more information, please contact cupola@gettysburg.edu.
Fearless: Heather Thomas

Abstract
This week we would like to recognize recent graduate and AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer Heather Thomas ’13, who is returning to Gettysburg as the fearless new coordinator for the Adams County Food Policy Council.

Keywords
Surge, Surge Gettysburg, Gettysburg College, Center for Public Service, poverty, food, food policy, food gap, food insecurity, Adams County Food Policy Council

Disciplines
Civic and Community Engagement | Economic Policy | Food Science | Politics and Social Change | Service Learning | Social Welfare

Comments
Surge is a student blog at Gettysburg College where systemic issues of justice matter. Posts are originally published at surgegettysburg.wordpress.com. Through stories and reflection, these blog entries relate personal experiences to larger issues of equity, demonstrating that –isms are structural problems, not actions defined by individual prejudice. We intend to popularize justice, helping each other to recognize our biases and unlearn the untruths.

This blog post is available at The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/100
July 26, 2013

This week we would like to recognize recent graduate and AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer Heather Thomas ’13, who is returning to Gettysburg as the fearless new coordinator for the Adams County Food Policy Council.

The Council is a community initiative established in 2009 that seeks to eliminate food insecurity by providing families who fall into the food gap with nutritious yet affordable food. One of its biggest initiatives, Healthy Options, provides families with food vouchers to be used at the local farmers markets that run from June to September. It also organizes a variety of health-focused community events such as cooking classes, workshops at the Painted Turtle Farm, hiking trips, and yoga sessions. The Council also compiles a Local Foods Resource Guide that identifies where fresh and healthy food is available in Adams County.

AmeriCorps VISTA, the program through which Heather is working, is a federal volunteer initiative started by President John F. Kennedy in 1965 with the intent of fighting poverty in the US. VISTA volunteers specifically work at the organizational level, partnering with and working to expand different projects that seek to provide and develop economic, educational, and health resources in low-income communities.

Though she works for the Council, Heather’s office will be located at the College in the Center for Public Service. One of the jobs to which she is looking forward is continuing to strengthen the relationship between the College and the Council. So many Gettysburg students don’t “know what’s going on around them,” and she hopes to change this while also providing people with healthy, fresh food. In addition, Heather will be working with and encouraging College faculty and staff to conduct more participant-based research on food sustainability and nutrition in Gettysburg and to include their students in this process.

This week we would like to give a shout-out to Camille Horton ’12, our previous coordinator and AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer. Today is her last day in the office, after which she will fearlessly be taking on the next chapter of her life, taking steps to pursue a master’s degree in public health and nutrition.

http://surgegettysburg.wordpress.com/2013/07/26/fearless-heather-thomas/