3-15-2013

Fearless: Immersion Projects

Center for Public Service
Gettysburg College

Follow this and additional works at: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge

Part of the Civic and Community Engagement Commons, and the Community-Based Learning Commons

Share feedback about the accessibility of this item.

https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/142

This is the author's version of the work. This publication appears in Gettysburg College's institutional repository by permission of the copyright owner for personal use, not for redistribution. Cupola permanent link: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/142
This open access blog post is brought to you by The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College. It has been accepted for inclusion by an authorized administrator of The Cupola. For more information, please contact cupola@gettysburg.edu.
Fearless: Immersion Projects

Abstract
Students on an Immersion Project in New Orleans are definitely doing some great work this week! The students spent part of the week working with Grow Dat Youth Farm in New Orleans City Park, an organization that hires youth from the city to work at the farm. They sell 60% of their organically grown food at whole food markets and restaurants and they donate the rest to their student workers. The organization strives to teach their volunteers responsibility, team work and commitment. [excerpt]

Keywords
Surge, Surge Gettysburg, Gettysburg College, Center for Public Service, community service, volunteer work

Disciplines
Civic and Community Engagement | Community-Based Learning | Sociology

Comments
Surge is a student blog at Gettysburg College where systemic issues of justice matter. Posts are originally published at surgegettysburg.wordpress.com Through stories and reflection, these blog entries relate personal experiences to larger issues of equity, demonstrating that –isms are structural problems, not actions defined by individual prejudice. We intend to popularize justice, helping each other to recognize our biases and unlearn the untruths.

This blog post is available at The Cupola: Scholarship at Gettysburg College: https://cupola.gettysburg.edu/surge/142
FEARLESS: IMMERSION PROJECTS

March 15, 2013

Fearless Friday celebrates individuals, groups, or events that promote change or challenge injustice.

Students on an Immersion Project in New Orleans are definitely doing some great work this week! The students spent part of the week working with Grow Dat Youth Farm in New Orleans City Park, an organization that hires youth from the city to work at the farm. They sell 60% of their organically grown food at whole food markets and restaurants and they donate the rest to their student workers. The organization strives to teach their volunteers responsibility, team work and commitment.

The Gettysburg College students helped Grow Dat Youth Farm with weeding to get ready for the planting which will take place this spring. These Gettysburg College students were definitely fearless when choosing this alternative spring break plan!

Check out what Keywuan Caulk, Shelsy Garibaldi, Katie Patterson, Sarah Scott, Andrew Astley, Rachel Lovelidge, and Meagan Lesniak have been up to this week!
And a shout out to the students on the Immersion Projects in Nicaragua and the Dominican Republic, as well as Carol Rinke’s Urban Education class is in Baltimore this week. They are looking at different models of school reform, and spending time with some 7th and 8th graders at Midtown Academy, teaching them a college and career options class. Check out their blog here!